Let's Give Lawrenceburg High
A Warm Welcome Next Week

The foot ball team from Lawrenceburg, Tenn., high school comes to Palm Beach county next week to play Coach Frank Holson's Blue Devils here on the shore of Lake Okechobee. The game is scheduled for next Wednesday night. The Lawrenceburg team is a winning combination this season—having defeated Pahokee 19 to 0 in the Blue Devil's first encounter of the 1939 card—and going through a long hard schedule in their home state. When the boys arrive next week—let's show them a big time. Let's do everything in our power to show the boys and their followers what genuine hospitality is in the South. When our boys went to Lawrenceburg they were welcomed royally—let's do as good or even better, if it is possible. So, it's welcome Lawrenceburg—we hope you enjoy your brief stay as our guests.

"SHOP EARLY; WHO KNOWS"

Freedom of enterprise still lives under this present dispensation at Washington, as witness the example of the merchant who is warning the public to "Shop early; who knows, Christmas may come tomorrow."

The Plainfield, N. J., Courier-News congratulates this enterprising business man on devising the perfect slogan to get people to his store at once. All the usual persuasions seem pretty feeble compared to this one. The public can do no less this year than to fill its Christmas lists without delay, and be prepared for anything.

Now that Thanksgiving has been made a movable feast, there might conceivably be advantages in making Christmas likewise a matter of personal taste, and these advantages will of course be pressed with vigor at the White House. The Christmas date has been moved about through the ages, there is something to be said for the idea of permitting each state, possibly each family, to choose its own time.

This improvement may come in the third, fourth or fifth terms, but for the present the public may be permitted to regard Dec. 25 as the date tentatively set for this year's observance. The urge to "shop early" should be upon every soul. Freedom to look carefully and pick out its own gifts is still permitted the shopping public. — Winter Haven Herald.

Co-Operative May Plant 30,000 Acres Of Additional Cane

New Concern Would Have To Build New Mill To Process Cane

Clewiston, Dec. 14. Following an enthusiastic meeting called by Clarence R. Bittig, president of the United States Sugar Corporation, who urged growers of the Glades area to organize and take their chance of getting their share of the nation's sugar market, growers began a campaign to set up a $10,000,000 sugar co-operative association to process 30,000 new acres of cane and lessen their gamble for a livelihood on winter vegetables.

The co-operative contemplates construction of a $9,000,000 sugar mill with an investment of $5,000,000 in agricultural equipment which would make it one of the largest co-operatives ever formed in this country.

It will duplicate the present operations of the U. S. Sugar Corporation which is now making its ninth harvest from 22,000 acres, employing 5,000 persons at the highest agricultural wage in the industry.

The new co-operative would be entirely composed of growers and would have no connection with the U. S. Sugar Corporation, Bittig said.

An organization committee and board of directors was selected at the meeting while growers pledged more than the 30,000 acres proposed for the undertaking. Application for a charter was made to Secretary of State Gray this week.
